His name was Antonio De Curtis, born in Napoli, Italy, February 15, 1898. His profession was to be an actor and people knew him as Totò, one of the greatest Italian comedians ever. His life's work ended in 1967 but his way of living and his fascinating personality impressed many people and inspired a restaurant in Zurich to be named after him -- the Totò Bar e Ristorante, run by Thierry Stecher and Chef de Cuisine Thomas Walter.

The restaurant is a perfect place for gourmets and bon vivants -- it offers Italian cuisine of high profile, preparing home made dishes with only select fresh ingredients. The pizzas are well-worth trying, as they are made in a wood-fired oven with a thin crisp crust, delicately and specially topped. Guests are able to create their own pizza, combined the way they like. The wine menu offers selections of Italian but also Spanish, Portuguese, American, Australian and Chilean wines.

A specialty of the establishment is their brunch all'Italiana; fresh baked bread, fruits, Italian cheese, different sorts of foccacia combined with a creamy latte macchiato or a glass of prosecco. Reservations recommended
